MONDAY 30

Joining the EU queue

European Union foreign ministers will have Kosovo high on their agenda when they gather in Brussels for their monthly meeting. They will also formally approve "accession partnerships" with 10 central and eastern European countries setting out the actions each country must take before iolning the EU.

China's WTO bid

Trade representatives from China and the world's big four traders - the US, European Union, Japan and Canada - meet in Geneva to discuss China's bid to enter the World Trade Organisation. US officials say they are worried by the slow pace of the WTO negotiations and have rejected China's recent tariff cut proposals as inadequate. The WTO working party on Chinese membership is due to meet next week to review progress in the long running talks which Belling would like to wrap up this year.

Opec takes stock

A meeting of the Organisation of Petroleum Exporting Countries' market monitoring committee is scheduled. The committee was due to review members' production levels and global market conditions earlier this month following an $8 a barrel slide in oil prices since October, it groups oil ministers from Iran, Kuwait and Nigeria. under Opec Secretary-General Rilwanu

Armenian run-off

A run-off vote is held in the Armenian presidential election. Prime minister and acting president Robert Kocharyan, who won 38.8 percent of the votes cast in the first round, faces Karen Demirchyan a Soviet-era communist leader, who gained 30.6 percent in the first vote on

Investment promotion

role of culture in promoting development and adopt an action plan to raise its profile in development strategies. Among those taking part are Gabriel Garcia Marquez, Graça Machel and David Puttnam.

Le working week

French prime minister Lionel Jospin meets CNPF employers' federation chairman Emest-Antoine Seilliere to discuss the proposed introduction of the 35-hour working week.

TUESDAY 31

El Niño update

The World Meteorological Organisation releases its latest update on how the El Niño weather event is affecting the world's climate. The current El Niño, the most powerful this century, has upset weather patterns around the globe, bringing drought to some regions and violent storms to others. It has also caused unusually warm weather in Europe in the early part of the year, according to the WMO.

Clinton in Botswana

US President Bill Clinton, who is on a tour of Africa, will be on hand when Botswana's president Keturnile Mastre retires after 18 years in office and is succeeded by his deputy and finance minister Festus Mogae.

Farm ministers meet

European agriculture ministers meet in Brussels to discuss proposals by the European Commission for the widest ranging reform of the Common Agricultural Policy since it was founded 36 years ago. They are likely to be highly critical of plans for big cuts in support prices, but the Commission will argue change is essential to prevent a build-up of food mountains.

Chipmakers wanted

The semiconductor trade association Semi (Semiconductor Equipment and Materials International) announces in Geneva a pan-European initiative to address the continent's serious skills shortage in the semiconductor and electronics industries.

Expansion plans

The European Union begins formal negotiations with Cyprus, Hungary, Poland Estonia, the Czech Republic and Slovenia for their planned entry into the union in the early to middle part of the next decade. The expansion would be the biggest in the EU's

Last steps to Emu

Helmut Kohi, Germany's chancellor, addresses the Bundestag, or parliament, as MPs debate the country's participation in the planned European currency union. German parliamentary approvals are the latest staces in a process that will culminate with the meeting of European Union leaders at the beginning of May when formal decisions will be taken on which countries will join the Euro block. The Bundestag session follows last week's economic "convergence" reports from the . European Monetary Institute and German Bundesbank, On Friday, Hans Tletmeyer, Bundesbank president, and Yves-Thibault de Silguy give evidence to the Bundestag's finance and European affairs committees on the readiness of membership candidates.

FRIDAY 3

Asia-Europe summit

Heads of state of the European Union and 10 Asian countries convene in London for the second Asem (Asia-Europe Meeting) summit on Friday and Saturday. Top of the agenda will be the Asian currency and economic crisis, with the region's leaders seeking a greater engagement from Europe in Asia's affairs. The meeting will also provide an opportunity for the first EU/ China summit to discuss bilateral issues, notably China's application to join the World Trade Organisation. Europe will press China for more reforms, while China will point to the responsible attitude it has taken in not devaluing its currency. Britain is anxious for the summit to make a splash. but only modest results, including a strongly worded statement on keeping markets open, are expected. More attention may focus on newcomers to the international stage like Kim Dee-jung. Korea's new president. This will also be the first big trip for Zhu Rongii, China's economic tsar, since he was applonted

ECONOMIC DIARY

Monday: UK money supply growth seems likely to ease. Growth in the narrow MO measure during March is expected to be just 0.2 per cent, slowing the annual rate of growth to 6.5 per cent, compared with 7.2 in February. Tuesday: France's rate of unemployment is forecast to stay above 12 per cent for February, with the end of seasonal sales reducing the number of temporary jobs during the month. Wednesday: The Bank of Japan publishes its latest quarterly Tankan survey of business growth to elsewhere in Asia and skuggish domestic demand is likely to have kept Japanese business sentiment low. Thursday: Factory orders in the US for February should see a fall, month-on-month, after the earlier 1.7 per cent decline in durable goods orders. Friday: The US employment report is expected to show lower growth in non-farm payrolls during March, after six months of strong payroll growth. Analysts at Deutsche Morgan Grenfell expect average hourly earnings to grow by 0.3-0.4 percentage points following February's big 0.6 point rise.
